

Abbott and University of Illinois establish...

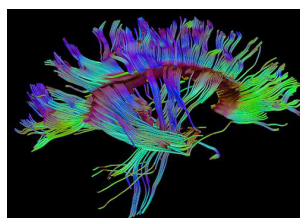

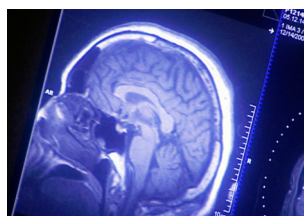

CENTER FOR NUTRITION, LEARNING, AND MEMORY

Call for Research Proposals Beginning 2012

Abbott and the University of Illinois have just established the first-ever interdisciplinary nutrition and cognition research center which will be located on the Urbana campus. The Center for Nutrition, Learning, and Memory (CNLM) will advance pioneering research on the impact of nutrition on learning and memory in the human brain, supported by a grant of up to $50 million over five years.

The Center will direct and oversee an annual Grand Challenge research competition that is designed to uncover the most innovative scientific research relating to nutrition's role in learning and memory.

We are looking for scientists on Illinois' Urbana campus to submit proposals and participate in this exciting challenge. To learn more, please attend the informative workshop that is being held on two different dates (November 28 or November 29).

JOIN US FOR AN INTRODUCTORY WORKSHOP ON THE GRAND CHALLENGE RESEARCH COMPETITION

Monday, November 28 • 3rd Floor, Levis Center

11:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. (lunch will be provided)

Tuesday, November 29 • 3rd Floor, Levis Center

9:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m. (breakfast will be provided)

The workshop is the same on both dates. Please choose the date that is most convenient.

Each workshop will cover:

- An overview of the mission of the Center for Nutrition, Learning, and Memory
- An overview of the Grand Challenge Research Competition
- Available funding
- Timeline for pre-proposals, proposals, and award announcements
- Who is eligible to apply
- Requirements for pre-proposals and proposals
